

The Blouse Bazaar

It was an exquisite display, in the Waist Sales of the new Bedell Fashion Shop in Thirty-fourth street. Patterned from the French, luxurious—yet not exalting an atmosphere of prohibitive price.

Hundreds of new revers effects, surplus styles, raglan models and novel waists, which, with a skirt, make a striking costume. Waists for evening, made of rich laces; waists with ruffles; low-neck waists emanating from the American girl, and blouses which remind one of a peasant's smock. New silks of special weave, and new crepes in wonderful Autumn colors, ranging from orchid and flesh pink to sunset shades and grays.

No magazine of fashion ever pictured so many waists, or more charming designs—and their greatest beauty is the moderation with which they are marked.

KILLS WIFE IN PARK, SHOOTS HIMSELF AS TROOPS DASH UP

Soldiers Shout in Vain as Murray Gordon Fires the Last Fatal Bullet.

A pall of sorrow hung over a large part of the Brownsville section of Brooklyn today as a consequence of the tragic death of Murray H. Gordon, general manager of the Universal Motion Picture Company of Boston, and his beautiful young wife, Beane, who had been a belle in the neighborhood where she lived as a girl. Gordon shot and killed his wife and then committed suicide by firing a bullet into his own body shortly after 5 o'clock last night. The murder and suicide occurred about 400 feet east of the croquet shelter house on the West Walk of Prospect Park.

Hundreds of grieving friends offered what consolation they could to Mr. and Mrs. Julian Diskin, the parents of the young woman, whose body lay in the family home at No. 1801 Pitkin Avenue, Brooklyn. The funeral took place this afternoon, as did this of Gordon, but the bodies were buried in separate cemeteries.

Incompatibility of temperament and jealousy on the part of the husband caused the tragedy, according to the parents of Mrs. Gordon. The young couple were married on Dec. 16, 1913. The wedding was a social event in East New York, but the Gordons were unhappy almost from the beginning of their marital life. Mr. Diskin inferred to her. He said that his daughter had been better educated than he was, and that she had been a belle in the neighborhood where she lived as a girl. Gordon shot and killed his wife and then committed suicide by firing a bullet into his own body shortly after 5 o'clock last night. The murder and suicide occurred about 400 feet east of the croquet shelter house on the West Walk of Prospect Park.

Just before the Jewish New Year and the 1st of Elul, Mr. Diskin expressed his unhappiness to his daughter and said that the approach of the Jewish holiday had brought a change of heart in him and he wanted to please his daughter. Gordon promised to make his wife happy if she would consent to live with him again. She returned to him, but left him again two weeks ago.

Mrs. Gordon's parents forbade her to see Gordon any more on penalty of having their home denied to her. Yesterday, however, Gordon telephoned to his wife and made an arrangement to meet her. She kept the appointment, and the evening of the Jewish holiday Sabbath, the day of rejoicing and feasting.

They walked to Prospect Park and sat down on a bench. Gordon reached for a revolver which he had hidden in his pocket and saw the woman tear up a letter and bury away as if in remembrance. Gordon followed, seized her about the neck, thrust a revolver into her mouth and fired. Then he sent another bullet into her breast.

Several persons saw the murder and were horrified or frightened to interfere. As the body of his wife lay on the ground, Gordon turned to the spectators of his deed. Then he strided back to the bench which he had left, placed two letters beside him and put the revolver against his chest.

At that moment twenty-five members of Troop C of the National Guard, who had been attracted by the two reports of the weapon when Mrs. Gordon was killed, galloped up. Some of them shouted to Gordon to drop the revolver. At that instant Gordon committed suicide.

The man's body was removed to the undertaking establishment of Solomon Moskows at No. 65 Bristol Street, Brooklyn, where it was taken in charge by the Julian Diskin Lodge, I. O. O. F., which was founded by his father-in-law. He was buried in Mount Hebron Cemetery at Flushing, L. I.

Mrs. Gordon's body was taken to the home of her parents and was interred in Anania Cemetery, Woodhaven, L. I., this afternoon. Gordon was twenty-five years old and Mrs. Gordon was twenty-eight. Mr. Diskin owns a large restaurant at Pitkin and Stone Avenues, Brooklyn. Dr. E. Gordon, a physician, at No. 1602 Eastern Parkway, is a brother of the suicide.

The Store of a Thousand Styles

The May Manton Fashions

The middy blouse has always been a favorite garment, but this season it has taken a variety of new forms. It is made in many different materials and is a genuine favorite. Here, it is made of white crepe de chine and smocked. It is very charming. It is very comfortable and can be used for school and for college, for sports and for a great many different occasions. Appropriately it can be worn over any suitable skirt, but here the skirt is in what we know as the sports style. That is, it is made in three pieces and the hems on the front edges are lapped while there are patch pockets and straps that give a finishing touch. It is a good model for many occasions—it is admirable for wear with the middy blouse, but it also is good to wear with the shirt-waist or sweater with a simple coat-suit. The blouse is a very simple and easy garment to make, and, if preferred, it can be cut off shorter and belted, but just as it is shown here, loose with patch pockets and smocked, it makes an interesting feature of the season. Smocking is being much used; it is not difficult and it always gives a finishing touch, but in place of the smocking, plain gathers can be substituted if the work seems excessive. Crepe de chine is a fancy of the season, but middies of the sort are excellent made of linen, galatea and all materials of the kind. White linen with the collar and cuffs of blue and worn over a blue skirt would make a good effect and a fashionable one as well.

For the 16 year old the blouse will require 3 1/2 yards of material 27 inches wide; 3 1/2 yards 36 inches wide; 3 yards 44 inches wide; for the skirt will be needed 4 yards of material 27 inches wide, 3 1/2 yards 36 or 44 inches wide, 2 1/2 yards 44 inches wide. It is 2 1/2 yards in width at the lower edge. The blouse pattern No. 8715A and the skirt pattern No. 8715A are both cut in sizes for 16 and 18 years.

No. 8809—Middy Blouse for Misses and Small Women 16 and 18 years.
No. 8715A—Sports Skirt for Misses and Small Women, 16 and 18 years.

READY TO WEAR!

It has been a hard season in the tailoring and clothing trade, and I have kept my shops going full force and turned out hundreds of garments that are all made up ready to wear.

Single Breasted Plaid Back Overcoats as low as $6.50

Double Breasted Ulsters $8.00

Fine faced Black Kerseys, ready to wear out, $10.00.

Every garment is made by me in my own shops. Some of these goods came from the high-priced tailor's stock of David Low, who used them for overcoats selling as high as $45.00 and $50.00. The great portion of these goods came from a concern in Malden, Mass. After a fire the goods came to me through the insurance people. Another quantity of overcoatings came from the stock of I. Goldstein, 77 Summer St., Boston, a wholesale woollen man, whose stock I bought in its entirety some time in July.
